

wife and her son, had about fifteen years ago. She subsisted chiefly upon fish caught in the streams and by knitting stout woolen hose for the people at the Hook; as the infant town was then denominated, from a bend in the river.

This woman one morning, about three weeks after the arrival of the stranger in the fur boat, was seated in her cabin door, knitting and enjoying the warmth of the sun, which shed its cheering autumnal beams broadly down upon her roughly-boarded floor. She was about forty-eight, with the appearance of a person who had seen better days. Indeed, she once contributed not a little to render the best society of Boston the best in New England, but reverse had taken hold of her husband, and at length he sought the wilderness to endeavor to retrieve his fortune. Here sickness followed unusual exposure, and by and by she laid him in his grave. She now lived mainly by the bounty of the family at the villa, though rarely would she suffer them to bestow anything upon her so long as she could have health to knit; or Howard, her son, skill in treasuring.

He was now down the glen with his spears and lines, while she sat in her door. Suddenly she heard a loud outcry down the brook. It was the voice of Howard, and its tone was that of alarm, like a call for aid. She dropped her knitting and hastened along the wild pathway by the edge of the foaming torrent, and soon came in sight of her son standing at the foot of a cliff which overhung a dark basin in which the water was many feet deep. He was half-way in the water, and supported with difficulty the head of a man above the surface, his body being entirely beneath it.

Come quickly, de'mother! Help me soon, for I can hardly keep him above water.

It is the foreign gentleman from the House, exclaimed Mrs. Holley, on seeing the pale and lifeless features; but without pausing to express her surprise or at that time put questions as to the manner of the accident, she clambered down the rocky sides of the basin and gave Howard her assistance.

With great difficulty they succeeded in drawing him from the basin and laying him upon a rock covered with thick moss like a couch of velvet. Here they both applied the best means in their power to restore animation.

The Daily News

NEWPORT,
144 Thames Street.

TUESDAY MORNING, Feb. 17, 1857.

E. TORRICE, Esq., is hereby authorized to transact for us any business connected with the News and Journal office, of this city.

The Mercury speaks of "serving us up without any great effort." We would ask if this is the way he proposes to do it? In addition to one statement he says, "while trying to cut down the cost of a Rail Road to Fall River, our Estimate of the quantity of iron, is 8d Tons greater than Major Brown's."

If the Mercury will again refer to Major Brown's estimate, he will find that for a 56 pound Rail to the yard, one mile requires 88 Tons, and that 20 and 1/2 miles would require 180 Tons, just precisely what we stated it to be. Now if he will please to point out where our blunder is, about the 88 Tons being required by us more than by Major Brown, we should like to see it.

Again we are "served up" in the same way, where the Mercury says our "plea, that by using Rail of 50 pounds to the yard, it would allow the Track to be constructed for $6,000 per mile, is equally specious, seeing that it would only make a difference of less than 5 Tons, to cut down a calculation from $8,750 to $6,000." Another error of the Mercury this, occasioned probably by his Counting only one side of the Track, instead of both rails, as he will perceive that a reduction of 6 pounds per yard, on 3520 yards to the mile, makes nearly 9 and 1/2 Tons, instead of less than 5 Tons, as he makes it; which would cause a saving on 20 and 1/2 miles of 192 1/4 Tons, which at $75 per Ton would amount to $14,750.

To estimate, that the Track could be laid for $6,000 per mile, does not mean that the whole road could be made, including everything at that rate per mile, but that the rails could be laid at that rate. It was made by a gentleman who probably knew quite as much and probably a little more about Rail Roads, than the Mercury and ourselves both put together. It is, however, proper to say, that it was done when Iron had fallen materially below Major Brown's estimate, where it remains now, to a certain extent, as it is probable that Iron may be bought at $12 per Ton less than he calculated upon; so that instead of the cost of everything being increased since Major Brown's survey was made, as argued in the Mercury, one of the most important articles is materially diminished.

American Rail Road Iron is now believed to be worth about $63 per Ton, instead of $75 as it was in 1846; and English Iron in New York is worth $50 per Ton; upon the first cost of which there is a duty of 30 per cent, which would probably bring it up to about the same price as American Iron. After allowing $2 per Ton to place it on the line of the Road, this reduction in cost would make a saving from Major Brown's estimate on 1846 Tons at $10 a ton, $13,416. Instead therefore of any increase in cost material over Major Brown's estimate, there would be a decrease to that extent; quite an extraordinary result in itself, &c. &c.

The Number of FAILURES in the United States in 1856, was 2765. The average liability is estimated at $94,160, until the momentous 15 creditors have received payment, or an aggregate of $1,416,000. The average loss of near $10,000,000. The majority of failures occur in the corporate, owing to the fact that the business transacted almost wholly on credit.

Courage.

The Lecture by E. P. Whipple, on Friday evening, upon "Courage," was a performance of great excellence. We say performance, by which we mean a combination of thought and its manner of utterance. We not unfrequently meet a wiseacre who condescends to inform us that this whole matter of lecturing is a contrivance to foster intellectual laziness. If a man is too lazy to read or think for himself, why, then, it is said, he can go to a lecture hall and get the thing done for him. This is not so; a real lecture cannot be found in any book. It is dramatic; and besides the thought, the statements and discourse, has in it the life, the inward and outward power of the speaker. When a true man speaks the words that fall from his lips with their simple significance are not the only important thing in his utterance.—If we could take away the spoken word and leave the intonations, the gesture and the various expressions of face and form of a great lecturer an audience would lose much less than we are apt to imagine.—In fine when a man lectures he does something as well as says something.

We make these remarks here because we were never more impressed by the significant and peculiar feature of a spoken essay than on last Friday evening. Although the thought was clear and philosophical, the arrangement admirable, and the illustrations in all respects apt and telling, yet we are sure the whole audience felt there was something in Mr. Whipple's manner that more thoroughly impressed the chief idea of his theme upon the mind than did all the rich thoughts and compact illustration with which his discourse brought out that idea.

His manner was not persuasive, nor censuratory neither defiant nor blustering—anything rather than that. But it was simple and manly, full of intensity and thoroughly alive; it was courageous. It was accompanied with, with peculiar abstraction of expression which Mr. Whipple's habit of reproducing his lecture as he delivers it has induced and which is admirably adapted to give dignity to the best conceptions of "Courage."

Mr. W. started with the proposition that men generally were not half what they might be because they lacked courage.

There were latent possibilities in us all, to bring out—to individualize which we were put into this world. The grand means of doing this is Courage.

The nature of Courage depends upon character. Mr. W. gave some of the chief phases of character in which it appears it had its root in the animal nature, in vigor or energy of body; but from mere animal pitch it ascends into the intellect, permeating the will, into conscience fixing the moral purpose, into the spiritual nature giving definiteness and fullness to pity itself. Mr. W.'s historical illustrations of courage as manifested in Intrepidity and Endurance were admirable. He gave us the very core of the character of Wellington, Taylor, Douglas, Jackson, showing in these cases and many others that consummate power as a critic not only of grammar and ideas but of life and character for which he is justly noted.

After carrying Courage up into the moral and spiritual part of our nature showing how it met there something higher and more transcendent than itself viz.: Heroism which is the inspiration of an ideal or abstract truth, while Courage is the contest thereto. Mr. W. spoke of the Courage of common life, in a few well wrought paragraphs, that showed his full appreciation of his theme.

In closing he made an admirable application of the whole, viz. the need of being not half but wholly alive.

Truth is organized and becomes triumphant in this world by first being militant. On the whole we think few lectures were ever delivered in Newport with a more wholesale and profound impression upon the audience than the one last Friday evening.

The next lecture in the course will be given on Thursday evening of this week by R. W. Emerson upon the "Conduct of Life."

Petitions were in circulation yesterday, relative to a change of the Post Master of this office, and many signatures were pledged to prominent candidate.

We also hear it rumored that at least one of them is pledged to remove the office to the Custom House if it is in his power which will seriously affect the business interests of the street. Its removal would work a perfect revolution in the value of real estate and materially injure important business interests that are now concentrated in the central portion of the city.

The Lecture of Mrs. Henderson at Aquidneck Hall, on Sabbath evening, was an interesting subject—IMMORTALITY. The sources appealed to in proof of its reality were the Scriptures, the facts of modern spiritualism and nature. The audience was very large. The aisles were occupied with chairs and extra seats and yet many were obliged to go away for want of room. It is the part of bigotry to condemn without hearing, to hear without considering, to meditate, to embrace without testing.

The Number of FAILURES in the United States in 1856, was 2765. The average liability is estimated at $94,160, until the momentous 15 creditors have received payment, or an aggregate of $1,416,000. The average loss of near $10,000,000. The majority of failures occur in the corporate, owing to the fact that the business transacted almost wholly on credit.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.—Rev. E. H. Hayes, a Wesleyan Methodist minister, in Stephen, N. Y., on the 21st ult., was boiling two gallons of spirit of turpentine, risen, &c., upon a stove, preparing a balsam when it took fire, and as he was trying to remove the vessel out of doors it exploded, shattering all the windows in the house, setting it on fire, and scattering the burning fluid over himself, his wife and three children. All died within a day or two, except one daughter of 15, who threw herself upon a bed and saved her life by smothering the flames. The parents had other children, who were at school.

THE CHINESE SUGAR CANE.—Peter Nutting of Northampton is endeavoring to organize a company in that town for the systematic cultivation of the Chinese Sugar Cane. Hon. C. C. Chaffee has offered to furnish seed enough to plant eight acres of land, provided machinery shall be procured to manufacture sugar from the crop. We should think the Connecticut valley would prove to be peculiarly adapted to the cultivation of this plant, and we are glad to see these evidences of an intention to test the matter.—Boston Journal.

DAVIS' PAIN KILLER.

Brooklyn, Conn., June 15, 1854.

FRIDAY DAVIS.—Although a stranger to you, I take the liberty of addressing a few lines to you for the purpose of saying a few words in favor of rarefiable medicine. I have used your Pain Killer for a number of years, and for bowel complaint and burns, and in fact for pain of all kinds, I think it pre-eminent.—Before I became acquainted with your medicine, I had a violent attack of dysentery, which reduced me very low, in fact my friends thought I could not survive, but by the treatment of a Botanic Physician, the best remedy I then knew, I recovered. Since then, I have had several attacks, one very violent, about four years ago. I was attacked at 3 o'clock in the morning, and at sunrise, I was not able to get off my bed. I sent and got a twenty-five cent bottle of your Pain Killer, which I commenced taking, according to directions, and at six o'clock in the evening my bowels were regular, and I was up and moving about, although somewhat weak. I would recommend it to all similarly afflicted, to avail themselves of your invaluable medicine.

I am sir, yours respectfully, ELMER WILLIAMS.

The genuine Perry Davis' Pain Killer is now put up in small bottles, with the words Davis' Vegetable Pain Killer blown in the glass; and with two steel engraved labels on each bottle—one an excellent likeness of Perry Davis, the original inventor of the medicine, the other steel engraved, a note of hand—none others can be called upon as genuine. Prices of bottles 12-1/2 cents, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1 respectively.

ANOTHER TRIUMPH OF THE Defence Safe.

New York, Nov. 4th, 1856.

MR. ROBERT M. PATRICK, 102 Pearl-st.—The Defence Safe, No. 5,778, purchased from you about eighteen months ago, was in my house at Newport, R. I., which, with the furniture, was entirely destroyed by fire on the night of the 5th of June last. The safe, after being exposed to an intense heat for many hours, was recovered on the 13th of June. Not having the necessary tools at hand to open it, the same was sold just as when recovered, until shipped to your address, New York. When opened at your store this morning, I was greatly surprised, as were also others present, to find the contents, consisting of valuable silver plate, &c., in as perfect order as when placed therein. It is with pleasure I add my testimony to the merits of the Safes of your manufacture.

THE MARRIAGE FEE.—The late Dr Boynton was once disputing with a farmer about the rate with which a minister earned money.

"Now," said the farmer, "When you are called on to marry a couple, you never expect a less sum than three dollars, and you sometimes get ten dollars—this for a few minutes' service."

"Oooh!" replied the doctor. "I would agree to give you half of my very next marriage fee, for a bushel of potatoes."

A few days afterwards, the doctor was called on to splice a loving couple at Dogtown, a place about four miles from where he lived. When the ceremony was over, the bridegroom said to the worthy minister:

"Well, parson, I suppose I must fork over something for your trouble. What say you to taking one of my terrier pups?"

The best breed, I tell you, in the country.

Shocking nice to have in the barn. Worth full five dollars—and I suppose a figure 2 would do for the splice, eh?"

The doctor took the pup with joy. The joke was too good; he hastened to the farmer, saying:

"Now, friend, here is my fee—how shall we divide it?"

The farmer relished the joke so well, that he increased the potatoes to half a dozen bushels.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF Colds, Coughs, and Hoarseness.

BOSTON, MASS., 20th Dec., 1855.

DR. J. A. AYER: I have no time to say the best remedy I have ever found for Colds, Hoarseness, Influenza, and the concomitant symptoms of a Cold, is your CHERRY PECTORAL. Its constant use in my practice and my family for the last ten years has enabled me to perceive its efficacy in the treatment of thousands of complaints. ELLEN KNIGHT, M.D.

A. MORTLEY, Esq., of Utica, N.Y., writes: "I have used your PECTORAL myself and in my family ever since you invented it, and believe it the best medicine for its purpose ever put out. With a bad cold I should sooner pay twenty-five dollars for a bottle than do without it, or take any other remedy."

Group, Whooping Cough, Influenza.

SPRINGFIELD, Miss., Feb. 7, 1856.

BROTHER AYER: I will cheerfully certify your PECTORAL is the best remedy we possess for the cure of Whooping Cough, Croup, and other diseases of children. We of your family in the South consider your skill, and command your medicine to our people."

HIRAM CONKLIN, M.D.

AMOS LEE, Esq., Monticello, Ia., writes, "I had a tedious Influence, which confined me in doors six weeks; took many medicines without relief; finally tried your PECTORAL by the advice of our physician. The first dose relieved the cough in my throat and lungs; less than one-half the bottle made me completely well. Your medicines are the cheapest as well as the best we can buy, and we esteem you, Doctor, and your remedies as the poor man's physician."

HENRY L. PARKS, Merchant.

A. A. RAMSEY, M.D., ALBION, MONROE CO., IOWA, writes, Sept. 6, 1855: "During my practice of many years I have found nothing equal to your CHERRY PECTORAL for giving ease and relief to consumptive patients, or curing such as are curable."

We might add volumes of evidence, but the most convincing proof of the virtues of this remedy is found in its effects upon trial.

Consumption.

Probably no one remedy has ever been known which cured so many and such dangerous cases as this. Some we human eyes can reach; but even to those the CHERRY PECTORAL affords relief and comfort.

AYER'S HOUSE, New York City, March 6, 1856.

DOCTOR AYER: I feel it a duty and a pleasure to inform you what your CHERRY PECTORAL has done for my wife. She had been five months laboring under the dangerous disease of Consumption, which confined her to bed, and suppers, &c. Days at a time. Worn out, and pressed, and pressed, until Dr. Strong of this city, where we have come for advice, recommended a trial of your medicine. The first dose relieved the cough in my throat and lungs; less than one-half the bottle made me completely well. Your medicines are the cheapest as well as the best we can buy, and we esteem you, Doctor, and your remedies as the poor man's physician."

Yours with gratitude and regard,

ORLANDO SHELBY, of SHENECTAYE.

Consumptives, do not despair till you have tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is made by one of the best medical chemists in the world, and its cures all around attest the high merits of its virtues.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

THE sciences of Chemistry and Medicine have been taxed their utmost to produce this test, most perfect purgative which is known to man. Innumerable proofs are shown that these PILLS have virtues which surpass in excellence the ordinary medicines, and that they will unprecedentedly upon the system of all men. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. Their penetrating properties stimulate the vital activities of the body, remove the obstructions of its organs, purify the blood, and expel disease. They purgote the foul humors which breed and grow distemper, stimulate sluggish or disordered organs into their natural action, and impart healthy tone with strength to the whole system. Not only do they cure the everyday complaints of every body, but also furnish safe and dangerous disease that have baffled the best of human skill. While they produce powerful effects, they are at the same time, in diminished doses, the safest and best physic that can be employed for children. Being sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take; and being purely vegetable, are free from any risk of harm. Cases have been made which surpass belief were they not substantiated by men of such exalted position and character as to forbid the suspicion of untruth. Many eminent clergymen and physicians have lent their names to certify to the public the reliability of my remedies, while others have sent me the assurance of their conviction that my preparations contribute immensely to the relief of my afflicted, suffering fellow-men.

The agent below named is pleased to furnish gratis my American Almanac, containing directions for their use and contents of the pills, of the following companies:
